Kyle J. Hill is an attorney in the Litigation Department at Rogers Towers. Kyle brings a distinguished judicial and legislative background to his practice.

Prior to joining Rogers Towers, Kyle served as a judicial law clerk to Chief Justice John D. Couriel of the Florida Supreme Court, where he handled complex civil, criminal, and constitutional matters. While in law school, he externed for Chief Judge Timothy C. Batten, Sr. of the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Georgia. His judicial experience gives him a refined perspective on federal and state court practice, appellate strategy, and judicial decision-making.

Before law school, Kyle served as Legislative Assistant to U.S. Senator Rick Scott in Washington, D.C., acting as senior policy advisor for the Senator's role on the Senate Commerce Committee—covering policy areas across transportation, maritime, aviation, energy, and telecommunications. He also served as the Senator's lead advisor for the Subcommittee on Tourism, Trade, and Export Promotion, negotiating complex legislation, drafting policy, and preparing key stakeholders and industry experts to testify before Congress.

Kyle earned his Juris Doctor, cum laude, from the University of Georgia School of Law, where he served as Executive Symposium Editor of the Georgia Law Review and President of the Federalist Society. He earned his Bachelor of Science in Finance, magna cum laude, from Florida State University, where his peers elected him to be the Student Body President and a member of the FSU Board of Trustees.
